

Action Learning

ex.pe.ri.ence n. [<OFr. < L. < prp. of experiri to try] . . .
4. a) activity that includes training and personal participation
b) the period of such activity c) knowledge skill, or practice resulting from this
Webster New World Dictionary

Looking to build your teambuilding repertoire? Searching for techniques where the learning is quick, effective, and significant for personal, professional, and team development?

Discover how experiential or action-learning simulation can be powerful in building team cohesiveness, productivity, and communication. By becoming actively immersed, participants are engaged mentally, physically, and emotionally. As a result, they discover and create solutions to their team's challenges and retain the lessons learned.

Find out how you can provide these outcomes for your organization as we engage in teambuilding exercises that

- serve as practice fields where you can test your own abilities to work in a team
- sharpen your skills for on-the-job application as team member or team trainer
- are fun to implement and to do

Join us for this special learning experience on

Monday, June 11

5-8

Goddard State Park, Warwick

Directions and registration on our Web site: www.baycolonies.org

- ★ Participate in Board member elections.
- ★ Enjoy a picnic dinner under the pines.
- ★ Meet and mingle with new colleagues and old friends.