CONCURRENT SESSIONS: 10-11:30AM

PANNEL DISCUSSION: 11-12:00PM

Program Description:

Want to increase the impact and visibility of your current training program?

Sardèk Love (our keynote speaker) will focus on “The Business of Training: How to Successfully Link Training to the Bottom Line.” During his presentation, you will learn how to implement a process which the results of your training initiatives are measured and linked directly to the key business strategies of your organization.

We invite you to bring a colleague (or several) to our first joint meeting with HRM-RI. The Professional Development Symposium promises to be fun, innovative, and interesting.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

Sardèk Love is a manager for Metropolitan Life Insurance Company – a Fortune top 37 company in 2005; he was selected by Senior Management to join the Executive Management Sponsoring Committee responsible for leading a cross-functional team charged with helping a $1 billion division achieve its goal of delivering world class customer service. As a senior level volunteer and advisor for the American Society for Training and Development (ASTD), he helps ASTD and its chapters improve the service provided to over 70,000 members worldwide. Sardèk and his fellow advisors were awarded the prestigious 2003 ASTD Staff – Partnership award by ASTD’s CEO. His ability to constantly apply his innovative ideas to achieve exceptional business results is what sets him apart as an effective leader of people. He possesses an incredible talent for helping individuals, teams, and organizations improve performance by enhancing the skills, talents, and processes necessary for organizations to deliver exceptional business results.

He lives Virginia Tech’s university motto every day of his life – “Ut Prosim” which translates to “That I may serve”. In this conference, you will experience that insatiable passion as he shares with you highly successful methods of linking training to the bottom line to deliver great results.
